

don't have to do this

DEMO TAPES

OK, so this is the explanation of demo tapes for everyone so listen up!!!!

A demo tape is a sample of one hour on the air. You will need to do all of the appropriate brakes (20 minute, 40 minute, etc.) and turn this in to us.

What happens is this... You do not need to be in the studio for an hour, it is just a sample. Here are the steps...

Legal 10 [Top of the Hour]

Segue into song.....

Do a segue between two more songs

20 minute brake [complete with psa's]

Segue into song

Bottom of the hour

40 40 minute break [with reader and weather]

50 minute break [with psa]

Legal 10 [Top of the hour]

This is basically how your demo should be set up! It should only be about 20 minutes long because we don't need to hear all the songs in their entirety! We just want the first few seconds (or the last few seconds if it is before a brake) and then you can pause it and go on to your next step [brake, 10, etc.] Get it? If not, you can ask me about it later. You will be doing this in the production studio so you will need to schedule a time and get with someone who can run the equipment and show you how to do it, too.

Sorry if this seems confusing. I'm not too good at explaining stuff like this. I know how to do it but I can't explain it to others all that well. The production studio is ancient so be careful to wipe off the cobwebs as you walk in.

Thanks and have fun!!

Watch out for Martians!!

Jen

